

PROCLAMATION

Parachute National Injury Prevention Day

July 5, 2022

- WHEREAS July 5, 2022 will mark Parachute's sixth annual National Injury Prevention Day (NIPD): a day to raise awareness around the importance of injury prevention and help Canadians to live long lives to the fullest through education and advocacy; and,
- WHEREAS Parachute is Canada's national charity dedicated to reducing the devastating impact of preventable injuries and in 2022 is celebrating its 10th anniversary; and,
- WHEREAS Unintentional injury is the No. 1 killer of Canadians aged 1 to 34 and costs the Canadian economy $29.4 billion a year; and,
- WHEREAS Most injuries are predictable and preventable, and Parachute raises awareness on preventing injuries on the road, at home, and at play; and,
- WHEREAS By providing the necessary information and tools, Parachute continues to work diligently to ensure that one day Canada will be free of serious injuries.
- THEREFORE I, Kate Rogers, Mayor of the City of Fredericton, do hereby proclaim July 5, 2022 as National Injury Prevention Day in Fredericton.
